

Professor Dame Ann Dowling OM DBE FREng FRS, President, Royal Academy of Engineering

Building better research relationships between industry and academia

*China-UK Symposium on Innovation-driven Development with Business-University Collaboration
4 July 2016*

Landscape

Reviews

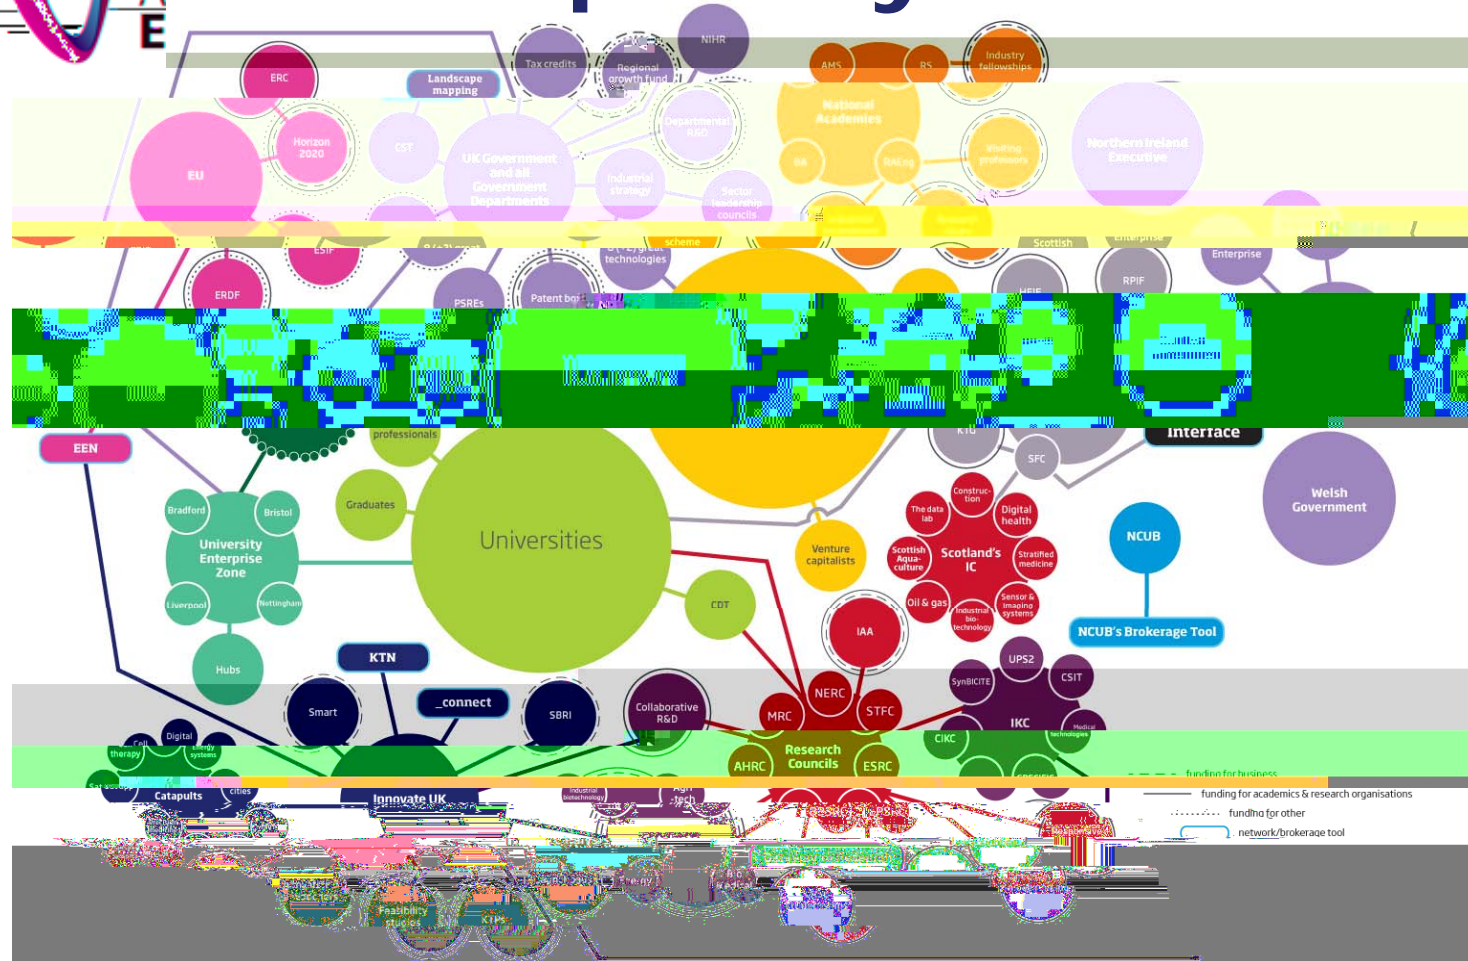

Political Response

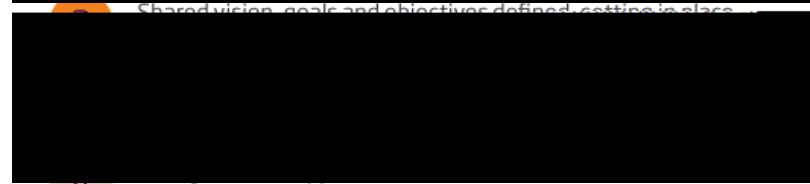

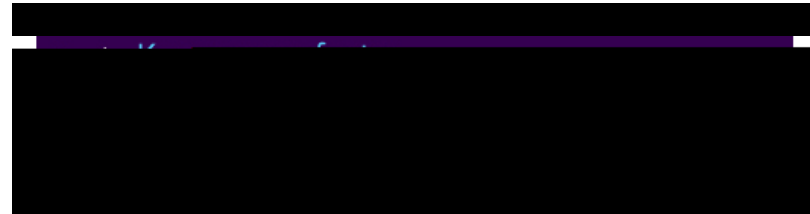

“Fostering greater collaboration between businesses and universities will provide the new technology and higher-level skills that are vital to raising our productivity. I want to thank Dame Ann for producing this important report. We will consider the recommendations very carefully to ensure we make Britain the best place to innovate, patent new ideas and set up a business.”

Universities and Science Minister Jo Johnson MP

Complexity

People

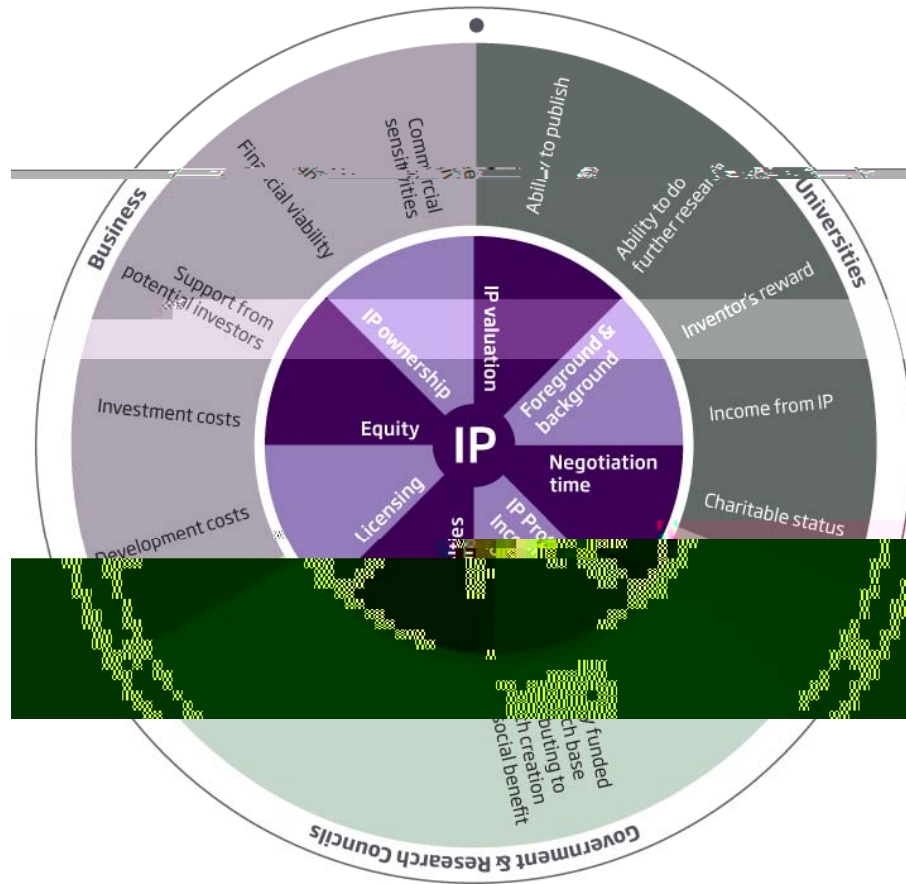

- 4 institutional boundaries
- 5 Collaboration brings about mutual benefits
- 6 Funding available
- 7 Processes for agreeing contracts and IP are in place
- 8 Clear and effective communication between partners
- 9 Organisational support, including senior management buy-in and championing
- 10 Willingness to devote time and resources from both parties

Brokerage

Taken from NCUB's State of the Relationship Report 2015

Terms of engagement

Government Strategy

